Andrew Thomson (1929 - 2021) was a strong player who instigated and ran the Wexford congress from 1971 until 1998 before transforming it into the Drogheda Congress in 1999. Andrew was a keen correspondence chess player in his day and regularly had 5 or 6 games running simultaneously. He was a president of Drogheda Chess Club.

Enda O'Boyle (1926-2007) started the Drogheda Schools Chess League in 1994 which is still a big part of chess in the Northeast. A primary school teacher by profession, he introduced a Primary Schools Chess League in 2004 which has grown successfully ever since. Enda was a chief organizer of the Drogheda club for years and a welcoming face to all visitors and new players.

Donnie Fox (1923-2005) lived up to his name as a player, employing every ruse to entrap his opponents. A keen strategist and league player he was a president of Drogheda Chess Club on many occasions.

Jimmy Murray (died 1980s/90s) was a founder member of Drogheda Chess Club in 1947. He enjoyed his chess so much that he used to whistle during his games in the club. He was a keen league player and treasurer of the club.
